Jefferson County native and professional golfer, Glen Bishop recently became the president of operations for a new local non-profit foundation known as 4E Sports, Inc.

He explained that 4E Sports Inc. is a not-for-profit foundation, whose mission is to educate, teach etiquette, encourage exercise, foster enjoyment and overall wellbeing to others by ways including, but not limited to, sporting activities.

Bishop said the foundation is based out of Monticello but is nationally known. "We try to focus on any area of need. We have no boundaries, but priority will be given to communities in the state of Florida," he added.

Board members for the foundation include Elizabeth Bishop, president and chairwoman;

Cricket Edwards, vice-president and treasurer; and Brittany Hobbs, secretary and vice treasurer, all of Monticello. The president of operations is Glen Bishop, of www.golfing-withglen.com, also of Monticello.

"This new venture will allow me to keep playing professional golf while continuing my charity work. I will now have a foundation backing my non-profit work, which will allow for more opportunities to continue doing it," Glen added.

"This foundation will help with the credibility, marketing, communication and much more, to create more successful events which in turn will allow me the time to invest in my professional career.

Speaking of the foundation, Glen said, "We believe that life can be lived to the fullest by promoting the '4 E's': Educate, Exercise, Etiquette and Enjoyment. We feel that by teaching the '4 Es', we can

"Just one change, large or small, is all it takes, from one kind word or genuine smile, to a unique and positive experience; we know a person's life can be changed forever. "Our primary areas of concern are rural communities, poverty stricken areas and any location in need of assistance with direct correlation of the foundation's mission," he added. "We focus on any individual, group or community regardless of age, sex, race or religion.

"We have many programs and opportunities to help others in need, which will be posted on our website for your viewing soon. Because we are a new foundation, we have limited resources at our disposal, but hope to one day be capable of benefiting community after community."

When asked how one could help the foundation, Glen answered, "Donate to the 4E Sports, Inc. Foundation; Help spread the word about who we are and what we're doing; Volunteer your time to help us in our ventures; Become an honorary member; and Partner with us in an event or gathering."

Glen added that the foundation is just days away from tax-exempt 501(c)(3) status.
